BARRACUDA YACHT DESIGN_50 M 'POCKET' EXPLORER

Barracuda has produced what it refers to as a Pocket-Size Explorer yacht with exceptional go-anywhere capabilities and space that also, however, promises new-build and operational savings of 30 to 40 per cent on a similar 60-metre. The new craft does not skimp on amenities either as they run to a private master deck, a helipad and a wheelhouse on a Portuguese deck with raised seating for guests and a walkaround outside. There's even a transom platform and beach club. Additionally, the garage and customisable aft deck have been designed to stow everything from a small submarine to a sailing yacht and compact 4X4 in addition to the usual PWCs. All four guest staterooms on the main deck have balconies and expansive windows so contact with the outside world is ever-present. An impressive 2.3-metre draft will allow the explorer to venture into very shallow anchorages that larger craft with deeper drafts simply could not countenance, an important factor for adventure-seeking owners when exploring more remote areas of the world.
